DUANE'S WORLD

Do you think it's safe to put the snow blower away for this season? At this point in the game, if we should get any more snow, I'll leave it to the girls to handle. (May & June). With the rain we have had, our grass is greening up quite nicely, so I think it's time to drag the mower out of the shed and get it ready for another summer.

We hope that your Easter celebration was a good one. We originally had plans to have 15 people at our house for Easter dinner, but one of our guests ended up in the hospital a couple of days before, and his family decided to be with him which brought our numbers down to nine. One of the remaining nine included our 3 year old granddaughter who is old enough to really get into the spirit of the day! She made quick work of finding the dozen eggs we had hidden about the house. One thing we learned from watching our daughter grow up is that the years being excited about the Easter Bunny and Santa don't last very long, and it's important to savor every minute of his/her childhood as it's not long before they are asking for the keys to the car!

Do you ever reach phases in your life where everything seems to be falling apart all at once? I am currently going through one of those phases. Nothing major, mind you, but just minor things. For example, last week I discovered a wet spot on my garage floor and found a leaking brake line on my '98 Ford F150. Twenty years ago I would have tackled that little project on my own but decided to take it to my local shop. The brake lines in the back were pretty rusty, so we decided to replace both rear lines. When the job was done, I got ready to take it back home, and when I tested the brakes, the pedal went right to the floor. On the way back into the shop I noticed that the front tire was all wet. Come to find out, the front brake line had failed. The truck stayed there and is getting new brake lines all around. Last week, the flapper valve chain in our bathroom toilet broke, and last night the switch went out in a lamp in our family room. As I said, nothing major, and nothing I can't handle, thank goodness. Rose has said more than once that the reason for these problems is that just about everything we have in the house is old! My feeling is that if something still works well, why throw it away!

An update on my car, Lil Darlin'. Last month I told you about my starter problems. The new starter I put in works great, but now I'm having problems with the car running a little rough. After it warms up to regular temperature, it seems to smooth out. I have fiddled with different settings on the electric choke, put in new spark plugs, reset the timing, and it's still the same. The plug wires are pretty old and I'm thinking of the possibility of a vacuum leak somewhere in the system. When I'm not fixing all those pesky little things around the house, I'll be out trying to track down this latest problem. As I have said before, "Having fun with old cars!"

Sadly, you will see another memorial to one of our Club members on page 7. Hopefully, I can do a good job telling about Dick Peterson as he was a valuable member! Otherwise, it's all systems go for another fun cruising season. See you out there, somewhere. DB

BEATS ME!

Okay, I lied when I said that last month would be my last "Beats Me" article for the season. Space allows me to get one more trivial matter off my chest concerning the old days of TV and movies.

I'll keep this short. How come two of our western heroes, Roy Rogers and the "Lone Ranger" always looked like they just stepped out of a fashion magazine being perfectly shaved and their cowboy outfits perfectly cleaned & pressed even after rolling around in the tumbleweeds and cactus with some bad guy they were trying to catch?

A CLUB FAREWELL TO DICK PETERSON

Our Club has lost another fine member. Richard "Dick" Peterson passed away earlier on April 1. Dick & his wife, Lois, have been members of the Southern Cruisers for many years, and as I have said before of other passed members, I can't remember when Dick wasn't around. We all remember Dick as having that beautiful '32 (Deuce Coupe) that he had for many years before finally getting it finished. I can put myself in Dick's shoes as he had that coupe for many years and didn't seem to be interested in getting another car! Dick was the original Larry Aus of our Club. I explain this by saying in past years, Dick always had his trusty camera in hand at all the car events, preserving memories just like Larry does today. Despite being an unassuming guy, Dick was a pretty good salesman. Dick took on the job of hitting the bricks to get sponsors for the Summer Spectacular, something a lot of us find uncomfortable doing. In some of the photos shown, Dick can be seen with other Club members who have passed before him. We miss them all and their stories!

Our condolences go out to Lois and Dick's family. Dick's daughter, Kim, said there will be a celebration of life in late May or early June.

Editor's note: In one of the photos, Dick can be seen hanging out with one of his grandsons, Brandon. How cool is that to be at the "Back to the Fifties" weekend with your grandfather!
